Stepping into mystery

21 Feb 2019

These rocky formations made of marble comprise several caverns and chambers sheltering a series of shrines dedicated to Buddha and Confucius. Absolutely stunning and awe inspiring but there are area that are quite wet from dripping water and the stairs are slippery, careful coming down or going up into some of the less accessible areas to see some of the statues.

Wonderful experience

Great views from different places. Wonderful caves to visit and quite a photogenic place overall! Recommend to spend atleast half a day to explore entirely.

Beautiful place

18 Feb 2019

Great views and beautiful temples/buildings and caves. Good trip, take your time it is extremely hot but can buy water on the way round.

Busy, but worth it.

Marble Mountain was worth visiting, but it was also a bit frustrating. Not only do you need to buy two separate entry tickets for different locations on the mountain, but also a lift pass to go up, and another to go down. Felt a little like being charged any direction you turn. That aside, there was a lot to see and the caves were pretty impressive. As with most tourist traps in Vietnam, trying to get a clear photo or find a moments peace is impossible - you just have to accept your new place in the 'horde' of tourists.

Beautiful and Interesting

We toured the grounds. There is an elevator available but there are a lot of areas you need to reach by steps. The steps are not in great shape but the effort is worth it. This is a center for buying marble even though marble is no longer mined there. You will be pounced on by vendors but it is fun. Just make sure that you know what you are buying.
